SILVIERA FLED SOUTH COLLEGE DEGREES CONFERRED.

Missing Havana Banker Seen on Way to Venezuela.

Departs as Ship Bearing News Leaves for New York-Absconder Passengers on Cattle Boat,

New York, Oct. 17 .- Manuel Silviera, the Havana banker who is supposed to have decamped on the steamship Carmelina the Society of Medical Jurisprudence, was an extremely technical exposition of the great strides made by the Americans in the practice of surgery.

In speaking of surgery in America, Dr. Beck said: "The greatest boon to modern surgery that it could have been granted was the news of the presence there was brought by the Red Line steamer Table and American, Dr. William Morton, of Boston, but few men outside the medical strides in the practice of surgery that it could have been granted was the discovery of anesthetics in 1856 by an American, Dr. William Morton, of Boston, but few men outside the medical strides in the property is GROW-ING IN VALUE every year; it can now be purchased at a bargain.

LOUIS P. SHOEMARER, octivative the Society of Medical Jurisprudence, was an extremely technical exposition of the great strides made by the Americans in the practice of surgery.

In speaking of surgery in America, Dr. Beck said: "The greatest boon to modern surgery that it could have been granted was the discovery of anesthetics in 1856 by an American, Dr. William Morton, of Boston, but few men outside the medical size of the most of the melina at the Island of Curaçoa on Sunday, October 7, a week after he left Havana. The news of the presence there was brought by the Red Line steamer and the straight of the Zulia, which sailed from Curacoa on Mon-

Cabello, for which port she had some the chaplain as the closing exercise.

& Co., who were the agents for the Carnelina, as well as the Red Line.

New York via Curacoa, said Mr. Chase and when he saw it he had wondered why any one sailing from Havana had taken such a round-about course to get to New York. He thought that it was probable the party would come on the Zulla, but they did not leave the ship, so far as he knew, and he was inclined to believe that they had gone somewhere

May Be on Other Vessel.

However, he saw in port the steamship Prinz Friedrik Hendrik, which was to sail the day after the Zulia, and he thought the party might have taken passage on that ship. The Prinz Friedrik Hendrik is due here about Saturday or Sunday. Mr. Chase was quite sure that the Carmelina had sailed from Curacoa on the afternoon of Sunday, October 7

The Zulia left port the following day. but heard no more of the other vessel. No one on board the Zulia understood the presence of the Silvieras in the little porters went on board the ship at quar-antine, and asked the captain if he had en anything of the Carmelina.

fapt. Bennett said the Carmelina was light when she came into Curacoa, though sh had her cattle pens on the deck. He had not seen the master of the vessel, and was not positive as to the port for which

Will Seek Silviera's Arrest.

A soon as Ceballos & Co learned that Silvera was in South America, Mr. Fisk, of the firm, informed the law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, who are the legal ad s of the banking house, and steps will be taken immediately to apprehend anker and make him account for the natur in hand, was out of town to-day lowe, of the firm, who was appointed receier by the courts, was also away and ill not return until to-morrow. Owng to their absence, nothing definite uld be learned at the office of Sullivan Comwell as to what steps will be aken to bring Silviera to an accounting. It is stated with authority, however, but an application will be made to-morrow or Friday to have the State Depart-ment take steps for the return of Silviera country for trial on the charge of
